MARK ELLIDGE
ARTS THROUGH THE LENS.
A COLLECTION OF ORIGINAL PHOTOGRAPHS

FOREWORD

Mark Ellidge's photographic career spanned 50 years. His talent, charisma and curiosity led him to cover a diverse range of significant world events from the hippy movement on the fashionable streets in London to the ravaged countryside of Vietnam during their war.

Mark moved to Paris in the late 1960s with his family. There he was a Freelance photojournalist and Fashion photographer; his work was featured in many prestigious magazines and newspapers including Paris Match. Moving back to the UK in the mid 1970s, Mark continued as a freelance photographer until he became a staff photographer for the Sunday Times.

Mark covered many important stories of the era including the conflicts in Uganda and Cambodia, the famine in Biafra, the thalidomide story and children with AIDS in Romania. He specialised in photographing the arts for the Sunday Times Culture Magazine. He remained at The Sunday Times until his retirement in 2005 when he freelanced again. He remained working right up to his death in 2010.

The Gallery at Green & Stone are delighted to put on an exhibition of original photographs from the archives of Mark Ellidge featuring intimate and never before-seen photographs of her late majesty, Queen Elizabeth II, King Charles III, Princess Diana, David Hockney, Francis Bacon, Nancy Reagan and Darcey Bussell.

As we lead up to the coronation of King Charles III, we reflect upon British history as seen through the lens of esteemed photographer Mark Ellidge. In such monumental times of historic change, we are reminded of the power of photography, and the significant contribution that Mark Ellidge made to it.
